PHOTO	 A photograph of a building facade. The building has a light-colored, possibly off-white or beige, wall with some peeling paint or plaster, particularly around the door and windows. In the center is a dark brown wooden door with a decorative glass panel. To the left of the door is a window with white horizontal shutters. To the right of the door is another window with white horizontal shutters. A small metal railing is visible in front of the right window. The ground in front of the building is paved with dark stones or bricks. A black metal post is visible on the left side of the frame.
